Now more than just a parade the event features the parade, civic ceremony and ends with a spectacular fireworks display over Pageant Field and Blacks Creek in Merrymount Park. The fireworks display is sponsored by Quirk Auto Dealerships.

GIVE IT A MAKEOVER

You may be one of the lucky individuals gifted with pieces of heirloom jewelry. Although filled with sentimental value, some designs may not be something you choose to wear. But don't keep them languishing in a box, their beauty silent; take them to a creative jeweler. The luminous stones from an old-fashioned piece can be repurposed into a new ring; two bracelets created from one dated necklace, or a set of gold cufflinks turned into rings for two special girls. If you wouldn't wear a diamond watch, you might cherish spectacular earrings. Pearls can be cut down and have additional elements or beads added to the strand to bring color and glamour. Keep the memories alive and fresh.

If you are contemplating turning previously worn but now-out-of-fashion jewelry into new exciting designs, you'll know you're in the right place when you walk through our doors at Rogers Jewelry. The wise shopper looks for the advice and guidance of those who can offer knowledge, experience, creative ideas, and the highest quality materials. That's exactly what you'll discover here at 1402 Hancock St. in Quincy Center, whether you're shopping for a completely new piece or a newly revitalized one. We also pay top dollar for old and/or unwanted jewelry. 'MA In The Woman Suffrage Movement' Tonight

On June 25th, 1919 the Massachusetts State Legislature voted to ratify the 19th Amendment to the United States Constitution, thus agreeing with Congress to extend enfranchisement to women across the nation.

Quincy Historical Society, at its Annual Meeting, will mark the 100th anniversary of this event with special guest speaker, Barbara F. Berenson, author of the book Massachusetts in the Woman Suffrage Movement: Revolutionary Reformers.

The program will be held at the Adams Academy at 7 p.m., on Thursday, June 6th.

Berenson will tell the story of the national suffrage movement and give suffragists from Massachusetts the attention that they deserve. Before the Civil War, Lucy Stone and other abolitionists organized the first National Woman's Rights Convention, held in Worcester. After the war, the Boston-based American Woman Suffrage Association led campaigns across the country. Their work laid the foundation for the next generation of suffragists to triumph over tradition.

Berenson will also discuss the battle over historical memory that long obscured Massachusetts' leading role.

Barbara Berenson is a senior attorney at the Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court and the author of two other books about Massachusetts history and the co-editor of a third. A book signing will conclude the program. This event is free to attend and all are welcome.

At the Annual Meeting the Society will elect its officers and members of the board of trustees for the coming year.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1907 real photo postcard view of the old Adams School that was on Phipps Street just off School Street in Quincy Center. This school served the youngsters of Quincy for 70 years. It was one of Quincy's first school buildings, built in 1855, on a half-acre lot just behind the Christ Church Cemetery on the corner. Through the trees on the left can be seen St. John's Church that was built only two years before the school. Originally only six rooms the building was expanded to 10 rooms as shown here in 1879. When a new Adams School on Abigail Avenue replaced this one in 1913, this became home to the Boys Industrial School. Then after the new senior high school opened on Coddington Street with space specifically for the Trade School, this building was demolished in 1925. Today, the site is a parking lot for St. John's Church.

Promoting Mental Health In Massachusetts

By State Rep. RONALD MARIANO

May is Mental Health Awareness Month in the United States. In the Massachusetts House of Representatives, we have a strong legacy of promoting and protecting the mental health of Massachusetts residents and ensuring that individuals with mental health challenges are treated with dignity.

We know that state government has an important role to play in achieving better mental health outcomes. To that end, the House's Fiscal Year 2020 Budget, which was passed earlier in May, makes major investments in the programs and services on which individuals experiencing mental health issues rely for their recovery and success. The budget provides over $580 million in mental health and support services for children, adolescents, and adults, as well as $222 million for the operation of community-based mental health facilities and inpatient facilities for individuals requiring long-term care.

The budget also dedicates over $22 million for emergency service programs and acute inpatient services, which help divert people from hospital emergency departments to the specialized support programs that are more tailored to their needs. Recognizing that those suffering from mental illness are particularly vulnerable to housing insecurity, the House's budget made the biggest increase in housing and homelessness funding in a generation, providing nearly $250 million in funding for the Rental Voucher Program, Alternative Housing Voucher Program, public housing subsidies, and homeless shelters.

I recently had the chance to observe first-hand the value of these kinds of investments to members of our own community when Beacon Health Options, the organization that manages behavioral health benefits for MassHealth members, invited me to meet with participants of the Peer-to-Peer Program at Aspire Health Alliance in Quincy.

For those with mental health issues, social isolation can be almost as difficult as the diagnosis itself. To meet this challenge, Aspire Health Alliance, formerly South Shore Mental Health, opened their Peer-to-Peer Program, a unique, home-like space where individuals with mental illness can connect with others with similar experiences. Here, they can meet with Certified Peer Specialists to focus on their recovery, participate in activities like guided meditation, or simply relax and enjoy a cup of coffee with those who really understand what they are going through. Small comforts like these contribute to important gains in an individual's progress and recovery. I am proud to see such an innovative program operating right here in Quincy, and grateful that Beacon Health Options connects some of the Commonwealth's most vulnerable residents to quality behavioral health services.

Mental Health Awareness Month is an opportunity for us to reflect on the progress we've made in mental health care, but the remaining eleven months of the year must be spent recommitting ourselves to the work that remains. The Massachusetts House of Representatives intends to do just that.

D-Day Invasion Marked Quietly

Allied (British, Canadian and American) invasion armies landed in Normandy, located in the northern coast of France, and drove 9 and 1/2 miles into the vaunted Nazi West Wall early June 6.

There was no organized recognition of D-Day in Quincy, save for some prayer services in churches of all faiths.

"This is no time for celebration," said Mayor Charles A. Ross who was called out of his bed at 3 a.m. when the news flash of the invasion came.

"This is a time for prayer and hard work," Ross said.

At the great shipyards at Fore River and Hingham it was just another day of toil and sweat. Fathers working at the shipyards, who had sons and daughters in the service, went about their tasks with lumps in their throats and prayers in their hearts.

Wollaston Garden Club Designers Create For MFA's 'Art In Bloom'

Each year garden clubs in Massachusetts are invited to design for the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston and its biggest fund raiser in April "Art in Bloom."

Works of art are assigned to designers in March. This year Wollaston Garden Club was represented by Ruth Griffin who was the lead designer and Jo Costello who assisted; Griffin and Costello have designed many times in the past and are always excited to find unique ways to interpret their given art piece.

Finding the right container is always key and the choice and placing of floral material is also very important. Arrangements are not judged; instead it is an opportunity for floral designers to exhibit before thousands of museum visitors.

ART IN BLOOM 2019 design by Wollaston Garden Club designers, Ruth Griffin and Jo Costello.

CLOSE-UP inspiration for floral arrangement.

A Proper Introduction

By KERRIN GRIFFIN

We come to the oil painting "Long Branch, New Jersey" by American artist Winslow Homer. Here, he captures a sunny day along the Atlantic sea board, the lights catching the crevasses of the rising sand bluff as proper persons leisurely enjoy the view.

Well dressed men and women gallivant the shore line of this desirable 1860's resort destination, where as many as seven of our countries presidents vacationed. Two women in refined attire admire the seascape below, both in billowing petticoats, one shielding herself from the sun with a vanilla parasol and the other peering through her lorgnette. Her parasol is held, ferrule down, spoke tips open just enough to reveal a bright red lining which complements the red accessory on her hat quite nicely.

Complementary to the painting itself, is this exquisite floral arrangement by Wollaston Garden Club's Ruth Griffin and her assistant Jo Costello. The vessel for the arrangement is a found object, selected for its similarity in shape to the woman's parasol. It is shellacked black to mimic the tone of her skirt, offering contrast to an otherwise predominately pale pallet. The rim of the vessel was hand-painted red to draw our eye to the red lining of the parasol.

The bleached Italian Ruscus create the first layer of greenery and protrude just over the rim, reminiscent of a lacy frock often worn by well-to-do women of the 1800's. Just above the Ruscus sit red Carnations, suggesting a ruffled texture and pop of color in the same vein as the adornment on the woman's hat and the red lining.

Above the red Carnations are a grouping of White Freesia and Ranunculus, soliciting both a softness and detailed structure to the piece. The white flowers bring your attention to the sun soaked parasols and ruffled hems of windswept garments.

Whitewashed beach bungalows and milky sands occupy much of the paintings colors scheme, therefore, gauzy White Baby's Breath protrude from the top of the encircled flowers. The Baby's Breath gives a whimsical interpretation of tiny flecks of white, reflecting on boats in the distance, a bright spot among the clouds, or individuals just barely in view.

The arrangement is finished with tall pieces of Gypsophila and Bear Grass, extending in the center, just behind the Baby's Breath mimicking the actual beachgrass atop the dunes. The grass extends upwards but also bends to reflect the feeling of the soft and salty sea breeze we experience when you take a moment to escape into Homer's depiction of "Long Branch, New Jersey."

Ham Loaf

By MARIE

Most of us have made meatloaf with all kinds of meats. I know that I have certainly used beef, turkey, pork and a mixture of some.

Today's recipe is for a ham and beef loaf, two ingredients that I have never put together to make a meatloaf. The recipe called for ground ham but I used a ham slice and chopped it finely and it worked out fine.

DIRECTIONS AND INGREDIENTS:

2 1/2 cups of soft bread crumbs
1 cup of milk

1 pound of ground ham (or finely chopped ham)
1 pound of ground beef
2 eggs
1/2 green pepper, chopped
2 tablespoons of chopped onion
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper

Soak bread crumbs in milk.
Add to meat and mix well.
Add remaining ingredients and mix thoroughly.
Pack in a greased loaf pan.
Bake at 350 degrees for 1 1/2 hours.

Scabies: Transmission, Symptoms, Treatment

A Message From Ruth Jones, City Of Quincy Health Commissioner

By RUTH JONES
MSPH, BSN, RN,
BC, CP-FS

Scabies is a skin condition caused by an infestation of the human itch mite called Sarcoptes scabiei. These microscopic mites burrow into the skin and produce symptoms of itching and rash.

This mite is found worldwide and is transmitted by direct and prolonged skin-to-skin contact with a person who has scabies. Sexual contact is the most common way scabies is transmitted. Transmission can also occur from parents to children, particularly mother-to-infant. Without human contact, the mite can only survive about 48 to 72 hours, so it is unusual, though possible, for scabies to spread through infested bedding or furniture. However, once on a person, the mites can live up to two months.

Mites survive longer in colder conditions with higher humidity. Once on a person, mites will burrow into the skin, and symptoms usually begin three to six weeks after infestation. Animals do not spread the same types of mites that cause human scabies, so it is impossible to catch scabies from a dog or cat.

Scabies usually begin with itching, which tends to be more severe at night, and a pimple-like rash. The rash can appear on any part of the body, but the most frequent sites are wrists, elbows, armpits, skin between the fingers and toes and around the nails, as well as on skin usually covered by clothing such as the buttocks, belt line, nipples, and penis. Infants and young children may have scabies rash on their head, face, neck, palms, and soles. In those with weakened immune systems, scabies rash may become crusted.

There are no approved over-the-counter treatments for scabies. A doctor must prescribe medication. The initial treatment for scabies may involve a topical cream, such as permethrin, which is applied directly to the skin, from the neck to the soles of the feet. It should be left on overnight and then washed off 8 to 14 hours later. Usually a second application after 1 to 2 weeks is advised. Other topical scabies therapies include Crothamiton cream or lotion, Lindane and Sulfur ointment.

In some cases, oral Ivermectin may be used, particularly in cases where scabies encompass a large part of the body and is crusted. This particular medication is also often used in settings such as nursing homes where there may be widespread outbreaks. To get relief from the symptom of itching, some over-the-counter antihistamines such as diphenhydramine may help control the itch and enhance sleep.

As mentioned previously, scabies mites do not survive more than 72 hours without human contact. It is usually adequate to machine wash bed linens and clothing in hot water and dry on high heat, or have the items dry-cleaned. It is not necessary to have furniture or carpets cleaned as the mites will die off on their own in a few days without human contact.

Some additional ways you can treat scabies mites or prevent them from spreading include:

- Make sure everyone who is in contact with the infested person is treated, particularly those who come in frequent, close contact with that person (i.e., sexual partners, people who live with the infested person, small children and infants cared for by an infested parent).
- Keep fingernails and toenails well-trimmed and clean of any mites or eggs.
- Thoroughly vacuum

RUTH JONES

carpets, furniture, and car interiors. Use extra caution vacuuming after someone who has crusted mites, as these are more contagious. Discard the vacuum cleaner bags or clear out the dirt receptacle when done.

- Avoid scratching bumps or lesions.
- Keep open sores clean.
- Keep in mind that once treatment begins it may still take a few days for itching and other symptoms to subside. If it does not go away, consult your healthcare provider.

Scabies can often bear a resemblance to other skin conditions. It may appear as tiny pimples, or mosquito-like bites. It may also look similar to eczema or ringworm. It is important to see your healthcare provider for diagnosis and treatment.

Scabies may be more easily spread in nursing homes and other long-term care facilities because of the close contact of residents and staff. Scabies mites can also quicker among immunocompromised people, such as those with HIV/AIDS, or cancer.

Ruth Jones is the health commissioner for the City of Quincy.

Will Isenberg Candidate For Ward 6 Councillor

Will Isenberg, a public defender and Quincy resident, announces that he is running to represent Ward 6 on Quincy's City Council.

In a campaign release, Isenberg says he is running to be an advocate for all the residents of Ward 6 and to increase transparency on the City Council.

Isenberg said he was spurred to run after his family's home, and the homes of many of his neighbors, were devastated in the historic flooding resulting from the March 2018 Nor'Easter. He says he vividly remembers staring into his basement, and seeing it filled to the top stair with seawater. He recalls how he and his wife frantically filled their car with keepsakes as the water continued to rise, and he is keenly aware that many of his neighbors went through the same, or worse. His primary goal is to make sure that Ward 6, which he said remains extremely vulnerable to weather events, has short- and long-term plans in place to minimize damage when the next storm occurs.

Isenberg said he is also deeply concerned about Boston's proposed reconstruction of the Long Island Bridge, which he believes is not in the best interest of the community. He has heard from many Squantum residents who live near the bridge site and are distressed about the possibility that their quiet residential street could be transformed into a busy thoroughfare.

As a lawyer who regularly opposes the city of Boston in court, Isenberg said believes he can be an effective advocate for Squantum and North Quincy, and he intends to zealously resist the rebuilding of the bridge.

Isenberg also says that he wants to make sure that Ward 6 receives its fair share of funding and attention for road improvement and pest elimination. Isenberg has heard concerns from many of his neighbors about the state of the roads in the ward, which see heavy use due to their proximity to Quincy Shore Drive. Likewise, Isenberg says that many Ward 6 residents are deeply worried about the rising rodent population and its attendant threat to pets and children. Isenberg states that he will make sure the city devotes proper resources to dealing with mice and rats, as well as the larger predators that they attract.

Finally, Isenberg says he wants to ensure that, in the midst of the city's construction boom, housing remains affordable and accessible to Quincy families and seniors - many of whom have fallen to homelessness even as luxury condos and apartments proliferate. The candidate says that this is nothing less than a crisis, and he believes the city can and must do more to ensure that residents are not priced out of their own communities.

As a strong supporter of organized labor, Isenberg says he will fight to make sure that local unions have their concerns heard as the city turns its attention to redevelopment in Quincy Center, Wollaston, and elsewhere. Isenberg said unions have not had adequate representation as one of the important stakeholders in Quincy's efforts to build and revitalize.

The candidate lives with his wife and two-year old daughter on Carle Road. He co-owns and operates a law firm, Isenberg Groulx, in South Boston. He is also "bar advocate" or public defender, who provides legal services to those charged with crimes who cannot afford a lawyer.

Prior to becoming a lawyer, Isenberg worked in the U.S. Congress on the staff of former U.S. Rep. Steven Rothman (D-NJ09), helping cities and towns secure federal funding for various projects. He has contributed opinion editorials about law and politics for The Boston Globe and The Patriot Ledger.

Isenberg says he wants to be the most proactive and engaged city councillor in Quincy, and he will reach out to all Ward 6 residents to hold regular town halls and meetings, so that the ward can work together to meet its challenges. He invites anyone who is interested to follow his campaign at Facebook.com/WillforWard6 or follow him on twitter @willoceraptor. He encourages residents to get in touch with him by email at will4ward06@gmail.com.

AMAC Certified Social Security Advisor
Association Of Mature American Citizens

Dear Rusty: I was 62 in February and my 44-year-old wife and I have 3 young daughters ages 5, 7 and 13. My 2019 income via wages will be about $98,000. My wife does not work outside our home. In round numbers my Social Security full retirement benefit is estimated to be about $3,000 per month if I wait until 2023. I understand I am eligible to start receiving reduced benefits at age 62 and I could also collect an additional 50% up to 80% of my full retirement benefit for my young daughters until they graduate from high school. My questions are: What determines where in the range of between and 150% and 180% my extra benefit would be? Would my benefit be reduced because of my income (I know my benefits may be taxed but the question is, will my benefits be reduced)? Finally, is my wife also eligible to receive any benefits because we have 3 young children? Signed: Older Father

Dear Older Father: In your situation the Family Maximum would apply and there is a rather complex formula which Social Security uses to determine that maximum. The computation is based upon your "primary insurance amount" (PIA), which is the amount you are entitled to at your full retirement age (regardless of when you claim). Your PIA is broken into 4 parts, and a percentage of each part is taken as an amount which contributes to your family maximum. The four parts (in 2019) and percentages taken are: 150% of the first $1,184 of your PIA; 272% of your PIA amount between $1,185 and $1,708; 134% of your PIA amount between $1,709 and $2,228; and 175% of your PIA amount over $2,228. Your family maximum will be the sum of those computations. What's left after your PIA is deducted is equally apportioned among your other eligible beneficiaries. For example, if your estimated 2023 PIA is $3,000, using the above formula your family maximum would be about $5,245. After subtracting your PIA amount, there would be about $2,245 to be apportioned evenly among your 4 eligible dependents ($561 each). But no dependent benefits can be paid until you start collecting your benefits.

Once your benefits start, your wife will be eligible to collect "child in care" spousal benefits, but the amount will be limited by the Family Maximum as described above. You already know that your children can no longer receive benefits when they graduate high school (or turn 19). When a child is no longer receiving benefits, the amount they were receiving is added proportionately to your remaining dependents. When your youngest daughter reaches 16 years of age, your wife can no longer receive child-in-care spousal benefits, but she will be eligible for regular spousal benefits when she turns 62.

Yes, your Social Security benefit will be reduced by your earnings if you claim SS benefits before your full retirement age and your current earnings are over the annual earnings limit. If you claim in 2019, you will not be entitled to benefits for any month you earn more than $1470. After this first year, you'll be subject to the annual earnings limit (which changes yearly but for 2019 is $17,640) and exceeding that limit will mean that SS will withhold $1 for every $2 you are over the limit. In the year you reach your full retirement age (which is 66 1/2), the earnings limit goes up by about 2.5 times ($46,920 for 2019) and the penalty is less ($1 for every $3 over the limit), and once you reach your full retirement age there is no longer an earnings limit. But if you exceed the annual limit, SS will withhold future benefits until they have recovered what is due. But here's a big red flag: anyone collecting benefits on your record will also be "contingently liable" for any overpayment made to you, so their benefits will be withheld as well until Social Security recovers any overpayment as a result of you exceeding the earnings limit.

Schools To Target Chronically Absent Students

By TOM GORMAN

School officials are in the process of developing strategies to deal with students who are chronically absent.

Quincy School Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro and Student Support Services Senior Director Maura Papile outlined the district's plan during a recent school committee meeting. The school system is taking a tiered approach to prevent and provide intervention for chronic absenteeism - students that are absent 10 or more days in a row.

"We've done some very hard work looking at absenteeism in the Quincy Public Schools...and how we can build a model by the end of this school year to target chronic absenteeism," said DeCristofaro.

Papile and DeCristofaro explained there are many reasons for students not regularly attending school. They range from illness, trauma, bullying, disengagement, anxiety, depression, transportation issues, and concerns over safety.

Papile said poor attendance can lead students to withdrawing from school.

"Chronic absenteeism is an indicator of a future dropout," she said, adding, "Our dropout rates are incredibly low."

Officials have developed a three-tiered system to head-off students on the path of missing school to the chronically absent.

The first tier is providing programs to prevent absenteeism. This is a school-wide support system that involves 75 to 80 percent of students teaching them social and emotional management skills, providing anti-bullying programs, positive reinforcement, proactive discipline, and behavior expectations.

The second targets at-risk students - about 15 to 20 percent - who have patterns of absenteeism. For these students, intensive social skills instruction is provided along with self-management, and increased academic support.

Papile explained that one program, "Checking In - Checking Out" involves students checking in with an adult mentor daily that provides encouragement and support. Mentors also have lunch with freshmen to make them feel welcomed.

Also, the Teen Speak Out program helps grow bonds and breaks barriers between students. Older students help younger students in class such as a reading buddy.

Sensory materials, background music, and a quiet space are part of a safe classroom environment for at-risk students.

Tier three is for chronically absent students and provides intervention. This includes family assistance conferences and offering alternative academic programs such as online courses and the Quincy Evening High School.

Papile said in some cases the supervisors of attendance, juvenile probation officers, and Department of Families Services are involved in meetings with parents to get to the root of the problem and develop an action plan.

DeCristofaro said there is also a focus for those special education students and English Language Learners who are not attending school regularly.

Compared to the state, Quincy's chronic absenteeism rate is lower at all grade levels, except for grade 12. The latter, DeCristofaro said, may be due to "senioritis," when seniors become disengaged during their last weeks of school.

The superintendent explained kindergarten and grade one students in Quincy have the highest chronically absent rate. It then drops off in subsequent grades, then spikes in grade 7. The number drops off again in grade 8, then, increases through the high school grades.

Quincy has 12.8 percent, or 980 of its total students listed as chronically absent. Compared to eight other districts, Quincy is among the lowest three, with Newton and Braintree.

"Ninety-five percent of our students come to school every day," DeCristofaro said.

DeCristofaro pointed out Quincy has nearly 10,000 students, the second highest of the nine districts in the comparison with Newton topping the group at nearly 13,000. Randolph, with just slightly more than 2,700 students, has the highest chronically absent students of the nine districts.

Papile said chronic absent numbers include extended absences where students are unable to attend class.

"The numbers don't tell the whole story," she said. "There are some complicated situations."

There are students who have a serious illness requiring them to stay home for an extended period of time.

"Students who have extended absences have tutors...and they count as chronically absent," said Papile.

There are also cases where students who return to their country of origin with their parents and don't return.

"We need to make sure the numbers truly reflect what's happening and make sure we know what we're looking behind those numbers," said Papile.

A symposium about chronic absenteeism for the lowest performing students was held recently for parents. A follow up was conducted with principals, design teams, and guidance counselors to develop intervention strategies.

"Once we understood what's happening, we look at the targets and what will be helpful to intervene," said Papile. "Interventions vary because the causes are complex."

Each school has its own approach along with system-wide programs.

School officials are using state Department of Elementary and Secondary Education guidelines, and targets to base Quincy's approach to chronic absenteeism.

"We set our own targets," said Papile.

Schools that decreased absenteeism were required to decrease it further.

"We created a tough bar," said Papile. "Every school is an incredible pathway to get kids reengaged."

School committee member Douglas Gutro noted there is a correlation between poor grades and chronically missing school and that needs to be communicated to parents.

Colleague Paul Bregoli noted that as a coach, he has encountered students who are chronically tardy at the high school level. He asked that tardiness also be included in the intervention program.

"It has a ripple effect," DeCristofaro said, referring to tardiness.

Committee member Kathryn Hubley said parents who take their children out of school for vacation also has a negative effect.

School Committee Chairwoman Emily Lebo asked that the absenteeism matter be discussed further in a subcommittee and include a look at students who are economically disadvantaged and homeless. She also said parents need to be aware that their child who is missing school "will be tagged."

DeCristofaro said the results of this year's approach will go into building next year's intervention program.

"We will look at the successes we had this year and build a model for next year," he said.

Added Bregoli, "I like the direction we're taking on this issue. We are making progress."

Boston Children's Hospital Blood Drive To Benefit 'The Mighty Quinn' June 14

The Boston Children's Hospital has a critical need for blood and will be hosting a blood drive in honor of Quinn Waters, "The Mighty Quinn," June 14, World Blood Donor Day.

Quinn, a three-year-old boy from Weymouth, is battling brain cancer at Boston Children's Hospital. He recently had to wait to receive a blood donation because there simply wasn't enough blood and plasma.

The Boston Children's Hospital Mighty Quinn Blood Drive will be held at St. Jerome School Friday, June 14 from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. The event will take place in the school gym, 598 Bridge St., Weymouth.

To make an appointment log onto: www.halfpints.childrenshospital.org and use sponsor code: MIGHT-YQ.

The star of the show, "The Mighty Quinn," will be in insolation preparing for his stem cell transplant at Boston Children's Hospital, but there will be plenty of people on hand to help encourage anyone who can donate blood. His parents, Tara - a Quincy Police officer - and father, Jarlath - a Weymouth contractor - and 7-year-old sister, Maggie, are hoping to stop by for a special welcome at 10 a.m. in St. Jerome School gym.

Brewery, Apartments Could Be On Tap For Wollaston

By SCOTT JACKSON

Residents expressed unease about a proposed mixed-use building in Wollaston Center that would feature 75 apartments and four storefronts, including a space that could house the city's first brewery, during a recent community meeting.

The proposed building would be located at 21-29 Beale St., 51-55 Cushing St. and 65-67 Chapman St. The properties contain about 28,000 square feet of space and are located within a business C zoning district. The existing retail building on Beale Street would be razed, along with the four-family houses at 55 Cushing St. and 65 Chapman St. Newcomb Farms, which is located on the same block of Beale Street, would not be affected by the proposal.

Ward 5 Councillor Kirsten Hughes hosted a community meeting on the plan May 30 inside Quincy High School, with about 75 residents in attendance.

"This is the first in a long line of steps for this particular project," she said. "This is a very preliminary meeting. Nothing has been filed. This is an opportunity for folks to give input."

The proposal requires approval from the Planning Board and Zoning Board of Appeals. Edward Fleming, the attorney for developer Eric Zhang, said he intends to file plans with the city within the next month, with the goal of getting on the agenda for the Planning Board's August meeting.

Zhang's proposal, Fleming said, was designed with the city's vision for Wollaston Center in mind.

"I think it's a well thought out proposal. I think it's got some great ideas," Fleming said.

"I think it's going to be exciting in some respects and, yes, a little scary because it's going to change Wollaston the way we know it, but what I've seen in Wollaston and what everybody else has seen in Wollaston is empty storefronts, people leaving the area, because there is just not enough excitement."

The four storefronts would range in size from 963 square feet to 6,125 square feet, Fleming said, each with its own basement. The largest storefront, at the corner of Beale and Cushing Streets, would be a two-story unit that could accommodate a brewery, taproom and restaurant. The city's Planning Department suggested the developer consider adding a brewery and taproom, he said, based on feedback from residents during community meetings to discuss the future of Wollaston Center.

"Breweries and taprooms have been looking in Quincy for years. We're the largest city in the commonwealth not to have a brewery, so there was a lot of interest there," Fleming said. "We talked with the city, they introduced us to someone who was interested, and we've had some preliminary meetings with them."

"It is a great space though that can be utilized by any kind of restaurateur."

Located behind the storefronts would be a two-level parking garage; one level would be accessible on Cushing Street and the other, plus a loading dock, would be on Chapman Street, which sits about eight feet lower than Cushing Street. The two parking levels would hold a total of 89 parking spaces, none of which would require the use of tandem spaces or mechanical lifts, Fleming said.

The 75 apartments would sit above the storefronts and garage. They would include 57 one-bedroom units and 18 two-bedroom units, for a total of 93 bedrooms. The PLANS FOR A mixed-use building on Beale Street in Wollaston were unveiled during a community meeting on May 30. The proposal would include 75 apartments and four storefronts, including one that could house Quincy's first brewery and a taproom. Eighty-nine parking spaces would be located in a garage enclosed in the back side of the building.

building would vary in size from four floors at the rear of the site to seven stories in one place along Beale Street.

The building would include an interior courtyard, a gym and function room. Fleming said the developer would hire a company to manage the gym and memberships would be available to the public. The public would also have the ability to reserve the function room. The developer also plans to widen the sidewalk in front of the building on Beale Street.

Several residents in attendance at the community meeting asked where the customers of the four retail tenants would park. Fleming said the developer had reached out to the owners of the nearby CVS site about using some spaces there on nights and weekends. The CVS site, he added, could be developed in the future, but parking would also be

SCAM ALERT #1: ILLEGAL ROBOCALLS AND SPOOFING

American homes received more than 48 billion robocalls (auto-dialed calls) in 2018. While many are legitimate — your doctor's office confirming an appointment, your pharmacy letting you know your prescription is ready, even AARP calling to offer educational sessions on things like fraud prevention — experts estimate that 40% of robocalls could be scams. Fend off the scammers! Add all your numbers to the National Do Not Call Registry (donotcall.gov). Explore free or low-cost call blocking options. Verify the identity of a caller — by your phone book or online. And report scam calls to the Federal Trade Commission at ftc.gov/complaint so the good guys know what the bad guys are up to. Also, recognize that incoming calls can be "spoofed" — faked to look like legitimate callers, so don't solely rely on Caller ID.

SCAM ALERT #2: FUNERAL FRAUD

Have you considered prepaying for funeral arrangements to alleviate your family from the burden on your behalf? Consider these risks before calling the local funeral home: Anytime you pay for services in advance, you run the risk of not receiving what you paid for. A funeral home may go out of business or may not honor the arrangement for any number of reasons. Funeral homes are required to provide an upfront, detailed price list. Before prepaying, get a written contract that shows exactly what you're buying and make sure you (and your family) understand what is included. Finally, check your state's regulations to find out if you are protected if the funeral home goes out of business.

SCAM ALERT #3: FAMILY EMERGENCY SCAM

Under-reported and overly difficult on our hearts, this scam, often called the "grandparent scam", preys on family bonds. Scammers claim to be a member of your family or a police officer or lawyer representing your loved one. They will tell stories of an accident, arrest, or kidnapping and request money to resolve the situation. Often they request that you not tell anyone else. If you receive a request like this, slow down, ask questions, and consult others in your family. Avoid talking to someone who threatens you or your loved ones and be wary of anyone who demands an immediate payment or decision.

SCAM ALERT #4: DNA TESTING SCAMS

A new Medicare scam involves "free" DNA swab tests as health screenings. You may visit a booth at a health fair or receive a flyer in the mail offering an incentive for signing up for a DNA sample. Before engaging, consider that genetic tests must be ordered by your doctor and must be medically necessary to be covered by Medicare. Scammers use these tactics to steal your insurance information and sensitive medical information. Additionally, some might sell your DNA information to third party companies AND you will still owe the costs since they aren't covered by your insurance plan. Know the risks and speak to your doctor and insurance provider before agreeing to "no-cost" tests and lengthy medical history assessments.

Be a fraud fighter! If you can spot a scam, you can stop a scam. Report scams to local law enforcement. Contact the AARP Fraud Watch Network at www.aarp.org/fraudwatch-network for more information on fraud prevention.

Council OKs 10 Department Budgets, 5 New Jobs

current fiscal year, FY19, to $30.93 million in the upcoming fiscal year, FY20.

The increase sets aside funding to hire an additional two patrol officers and also increases the line item for overtime from $833,000 to $955,000. Police Chief Paul Keenan said the budget would bring the number of patrols officers in his department up to 165. He said the department had 144 officers in 2008, the year he was appointed chief. In 1983, the year he first joined the department, there were 169 patrol officers.

Councillor Anne Mahoney asked Keenan about diversity within the department's ranks, and whether the department has an officer assigned as an LGBT officer. New people are moving to the city making it more diverse, she said, "and to service the city, we have to be able to communicate with them."

Keenan said his department has seven Asian-American officers, one black officer, and 17 female officers, including a Hispanic female. Quincy is a Civil Service community, he said, limiting the department's ability to hire more diverse candidates; the Civil Service system gives preference to individuals whose parent was killed or injured in the line of duty, disabled veterans and veterans. The department did ask for a list of female candidates at one point, but the Civil Service Commission denied that request, Keenan added.

"We have tried to diversify a bit, but we have to take from the list," he said.

The department, he added, has a lieutenant assigned as a civil rights officer who handles hate and bias crimes.

The $2.96 million budget for the Department of Natural Resources was also approved during the May 29 meeting. The department was formed earlier this year from the merger of the Park and Recreation Departments, though Koch's budget includes separate recreation and cemetery division budgets, which were also approved May 29.

Councillors approved but did not fund two positions — a tree warden and earth scientist — when they signed off on Koch's merger proposal. Both will be funded in the FY20 budget, with a $91,000 salary for each position.

David Murphy, the commissioner of natural resources, said the addition of the tree warden would allow his department to complete an inventory the 20,000 street trees planted in Quincy. The earth scientist, he added, would focus on conservation areas such as Butler's Pond and Passanageset Park at Broad Meadows Marsh.

The fifth position approved May 29 is a social worker with the Council on Aging, which has a $65,500 salary. The Council on Aging's budget will increase from $746,000 to $828,000.

Koch had proposed a $241,000 budget for the Emergency Management Department, up from $150,000. That included a new $75,600 line item for emergency preparedness, from which the finance committee cut $50,000.

Ally Sleiman, who was hired as the emergency management director in 2018, said the line item in question was for three items including an outside firm to review two or three sites the city has selected as potential emergency shelters, a new emergency preparedness plan and Alert Quincy, a program the city uses to notify residents of ongoing emergencies, like the five-alarm March fire in Wollaston. Sleiman said the city is seeking grants for all three items and previously received a grant for Alert Quincy.

Mahoney proposed the $50,000 cut. She said Sleiman should be able to partner with other city agencies, including the Quincy Fire Department, to do some of the proposed work in house.

"It's not going to put showers in a location, because that's just a feasibility study that we're taking about," Mahoney said of the proposed funding for the emergency shelter study. "In Quincy, we're very famous for hiring consultants to tell us what we already know. I really, really, really want to make sure we're going about this in the appropriate way."

Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci also questioned why an outside firm was needed for that work.

"Why do we need an outside company at whatever money it is — tens of thousands of dollars — to tell us what the place you indicated you've already identified needs? Can't you walk into that building and see it doesn't have showers, it doesn't have an alternate power source?" Palmucci said.

The cut passed in a 5-2 vote. Mahoney and Palmucci both voted in favor of the $50,000 cut, joined by William Harris, Nina Liang and Ian Cain, the chairman of the finance committee. Noel DiBona and David McCarthy voted against it; DiBona said shelters are needed based on what happened during the March 2018 nor'easter that flooded coastal areas of the city, forcing some residents stay at the Atherton Hough School for several days.

The Emergency Management Department's $191,000 budget was then approved by voice vote.

Also approved on May 29 was the budget for the Traffic, Parking, Alarm and Lighting Department. The TPAL budget will decrease in the new fiscal year from $2.95 million to $2.94 million. The decrease is because the city will spend $100,000 less on street lighting next fiscal year following the switch to LED lights.

Chris Cassani, the director of TPAL, said his department is planning to use funds in the budget for accessibility improvements at the intersection of Washington Street and Southern Artery. The department will also add a pedestrian crossing on Beale Street at Old Colony Avenue to accommodate people walking to the Wollaston MBTA station, which will re-open this summer. New bicycle infrastructure will also be created along Washington Street between Southern Artery and Quincy Center and on Billings Road.

The budget for the Inspectional Services Department was approved as well on May 29. It will increase from $1.72 million to $1.82 million. The Public Buildings Department's budget was approved also; it will increase from $5.92 million to $6.11 million, including an extra $57,000 for overtime for tradesmen in the department. The Veterans Services Department's budget was approved; it will decrease from $1.92 million to $1.68 million, reflecting a decrease in veterans' assistance claims. The final budget approved was that of the animal control officer, which will increase by $5,000 to $130,000.

Brewery, Apartments Could Be On Tap For Wollaston

available at the nearby Wollaston MBTA station.

Traffic was another concern for some residents. Lynda Segal said Zhang's proposal — and another developer's plan for 63-units at the former home of the Wollaston Theater on the opposite side of Beale Street — would compound traffic problems in the area.

"It's bad in Quincy now with all the additional residences. It takes twice as long to get through the streets of Quincy. Especially Wollaston — there is very little flow going through there," she said.

"Now you're talking about additional residences for this property and for the property across the street...

that's a lot of additional traffic on the streets, and I don't see where you're solving that problem."

Fleming said traffic would be considered during the permitting process and the developer could be required to fund measures to mitigate the impact of the building, such as changes to timing for nearby traffic signals. An independent peer reviewer is hired at the developer's expense to review traffic and other impacts.

Nicole DePace said she was concerned the city's water and sewer mains might not be able to handle the brewery and apartments.

"The water and sewer infrastructure in Quincy is quite old," she said. "This is going to stress that infrastructure."

Karlis Skulte, the developer's engineer, said the city would require flow tests of the water mains and inspections of the sewer lines with cameras during the permitting process. The developer could be asked to upgrade those underground utilities if they would be inadequate to service the building.

Gordon DeCambra said he liked the look of the proposed building but felt it was too big for Wollaston.

"Do what you want to do in Quincy Center. I think this is setting the tone for Wollaston. Wollaston as far as I'm concerned is still a neighborhood. I think it's a little too big — scale it down," DeCambra said. "I like the aesthetics as far as that goes, but I think it's too big."

On Sunday, May 26, 2019 at approximately 1:36 a.m., Officer Michael Reilly was dispatched to the Waterclub located at Marina Bay for a report of a female bleeding. Captain Goyette, who was working the detail, assisted in locating the female who was standing with a male.

The excited male stated the female needed a ride to the hospital because she had a cut of her face. Officer Reilly examined the injury, which was minor and told the male it is against department policy to transport people to the hospital but would summons an ambulance for medical attention and transportation if needed. At this point, the 22-year-old female stated she did not want an ambulance nor did she need or want to go to the hospital. The male and female then walked away from the Waterclub.

Captain Goyette and Officer Reilly cleared the scene; however a few minutes later, the officers were about to leave the area when they observed the same male and female in a disorder in the parking lot. The officers closed in and witnessed the male screaming at the Uber driver, demanding that he take the female to the hospital. The Uber driver refused to allow the male in the vehicle because he was disorderly and aggressive toward him.

Officer Reilly again asked the female if she wanted an ambulance and she said no. The male reiterated his demand that the police provide another means to get the female to the hospital. Captain Goyette told the male that if she didn't want an ambulance then they could get a taxi or another Uber because the one that was present just drove away. The male became irate as he and the female walked off.

With the couple gone, peace appeared to be restored. Captain Goyette left the marina while Officer Reilly remained in the parking lot as other patrons headed to their vehicles. After a few minutes, with the parking lot quiet, Officer Reilly started driving away when the same male jumped into the middle of the road and waved the officer down. The male ran up to the driver's side window and said, "You should be ashamed of yourself for not giving that girl a ride." He then punched the window to the left rear door of the cruiser and ran to the sidewalk where the female was standing and crying.

As the officer walked over towards the couple, two employees from nearby bars came over to assist because they saw the male strike the cruiser and were concerned. When Officer Reilly told the male that he was under arrest for disorderly conduct, the male immediately ran away towards Victory Road. The officer requested additional units respond to locate the male suspect.

The female for the first time, asked for an ambulance (which may have been a ruse so the male suspect could get away) so Brewster was dispatched. Officers John Ruggiero and Veronica Acevedo were dispatched to the scene to assist. Captain Goyette, who had just left the Marina Bay area, returned after hearing the request for assistance and spotted the male. Officers responded to the captain's location and started to place the male under arrest. He was uncooperative and became combative, resisting arrest by stiffening his arms.

After a brief struggle, the male suspect was handcuffed but continued resisting by making his legs go limp and dragging his feet to the cruiser. A brief struggle ensued while trying to get the male suspect into the caged area of the cruiser. As the male was being transported to the station, Brewster Ambulance arrived and examined the female. During conversation with the female, Officer Reilly asked the female about her relationship with the male. She said that she didn't even know him - that she just met him! When asked about the cut on her face, the female said that she was in a fight at the Waterclub with someone named Erin. She said after the fight, the unknown male came over to her and kept trying to get her to go to the hospital. She did not know him, never met or seen him before and didn't know why he insisted on helping her without being asked.

The female did not go to the hospital and the male suspect, a 22-year-old Abington resident, was charged with disorderly conduct and resisting arrest. Nice Work!

Quincy Health Department Offering MMR Vaccine

gious disease, the previous day. Jones said the 11-month old was too young to receive the MMR vaccine, which is typically administered between the ages of 12 and 15 months.

Anyone who was at one of five locations at the same time frame as the child in the days prior to May 25 should get the MMR vaccine, Jones said, as should anyone who does not know if they have been immunized.

"Anyone who may have been exposed...should get a dose," she said. "People who don't know their immunization status should get a dose."

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention presumes anyone born before 1957 was exposed to measles and does not require an MMR vaccine; Jones said her department will administer the vaccine to those individuals if they request it.

The CDC says anyone who received the inactivated measles vaccine between 1963 and 1967 is not considered immune. Those who received the live measles vaccine during that time period, or two doses of the MMR vaccine since 1968, are considered immune.

DPH said the public may have been exposed to measles at the following times and places in Quincy: Jack n Jill Childcare at Marina Bay, 500 Victory Rd., from 8:15 to 10:40 a.m. and 5:15 to 7:30 p.m. on May 21 and May 23; Star Market, 130 Granite St., from 4 to 7 p.m. on May 22; the Quincy YMCA, 79 Coddington St., from 2 to 7 p.m. on May 22; and Crown Colony Medical Center, 500 Congress St., from 9:10 a.m. to 1:40 p.m. on May 24. Exposure may have also occurred at the Weymouth Club, 75 Fennell Dr. in Weymouth, between 11 a.m. and 3 p.m. on May 18.

DPH advised anyone who may have been exposed at those locations to contact their healthcare provider to confirm their immunization status.

Jones said the Health Department initially offered the MMR vaccine to adults who may have been exposed at one of those locations but has since decided to offer it to anyone who requests it. Those who do will first fill out a questionnaire that is designed to limit possible contraindications.

Residents under the age of 18 should receive the vaccine from their pediatrician or health care provider if they have not already been vaccinated, Jones said. The city received 180 doses of the vaccine from DPH at no charge, she said, and more are available from the state as needed.

"We will have the vaccine for as long as we need it," Jones said.

Early symptoms of measles occur 10 days to two weeks after exposure and may resemble a cold (with fever, cough, runny nose, and red eyes) and a rash occurs on the skin two to four days after the initial symptoms develop, according to the DPH. The rash usually appears first on the head and then moves downward. The rash typically lasts a few days and then disappears in the same order.

Those who were exposed and begin to develop symptoms of measles should call their healthcare provider before visiting an office, clinic, or emergency department. Visiting a healthcare facility may put others at risk and should be avoided. Anyone who has had measles in the past or has received two doses of the vaccine is unlikely to develop measles even if exposed.

People with measles may be contagious up to four days before the rash appears and for four days after the day the rash appears.

Measles vaccine given within 72 hours of exposure may prevent measles disease, and vaccination beyond this window will provide protection from subsequent exposures.

Two Atlantic School Students Honored At JFK Library

By SAMANTHA
ENBAR-SALO

Two Atlantic Middle School students, Abigail Coughlin and Nicholas Enbar-Salo, were recently honored at the John F. Kennedy Make a Difference Ceremony at the JFK Presidential Library.

Fifty-seven middle school students from across

Massachusetts were celebrated for leading a variety of community service projects at the event.

Abigail partnered with Cradles to Crayons for her Project 351 service project to organize a clothing and school supplies drive. Nicholas led the construction of an osprey pole in the Squantum marshes, and lectured Squantum Elementary School students on ospreys to increase awareness.

Both students were nominated by faculty at Atlantic Middle School. Atlantic's Acting Principal, Aliza Schneller, was also in attendance to congratulate the two Quincy students.

PorchFest Quincy June 22

Dozens of bands are set to perform on porches across three of the city's neighborhoods during the fourth annual PorchFest Quincy, which will take place on June 22 this year.

The free outdoor music festival will take place from 3 to 9 p.m. that day, rain or shine. Performances will take place from 3 to 7 p.m. in the Merrymount and Wollaston Hill neighborhoods, and from 4 to 9 p.m. in Squantum.

Last year's event featured 130 performers at 80 locations throughout the same neighborhoods and a similar crowd is anticipated this year. A wide variety of music - which can include blues, classical, country, jazz, Latino, R&B, reggae, rock and more - is featured in the festival.

Ward 3 Councillor Ian

Cain said organizers are in the process of matching the musicians who will take part in the event with the homeowners who have agreed to allow the performances on their property.

Yard signs will be installed at each porch host's front yard on June 16 and the performance schedule will be released June 20 on the event's website, porchfestquincy.org.

Team CHUCKLE Cycling Again For Jimmy Fund

Ray Waldron, a life-long Quincy resident and a Quincy firefighter for 17 years, will be riding in his 16th Pan-Mass Challenge in August.

James Conley, another Quincy native and resident, will be riding in his 9th PMC. These two, along with a few others from the North Shore form the core of Team CHUCKLE, which changes in number every year, ranging from 4 to 37 riders since 2010. Most years there are about a dozen members of the team. Every year, the team hosts fundraisers of different types.

This year, Team CHUCKLE, which they point out stands for Comedy Helps Us Cure Kids LivEs, is returning to its roots and hosting a comedy show – the 2019 Pan-Mass CHUCKLE – on Saturday, June 8th at 7 p.m. at Quincy Sons of Italy on Quarry Street. The team is hopeful for a big turnout.

Their goal, along with nearly 6,500 other cyclists from around the country, is to raise money for cancer research for the Jimmy Fund at Dana-Farber Cancer Institute. Last year, 6,340 cyclists, 4,000 volunteers, 47 communities, 200 companies and more than 227,000 people who support the cause, raised over $56 million. Since 1980, the PMC has contributed $654 million to lifesaving cancer research and treatment at Dana-Farber Cancer Institute. Team CHUCKLE has contributed more than $620,000 since it was formed in 2010.

Everyone has their reasons for riding.

Ray Waldron began riding in 1989 for the challenge of the ride as much as for the charity. A year off in 1995 turned into a 15 year sabbatical and when he started riding again in 2010, he had many more reasons to ride, including the memory of his father-in-law, Fred Collins, who passed away in 1997 from a brain tumor. In the last few years, Ray's mother Polly, has been receiving chemotherapy and radiation treatments at Dana-Farber to treat uterine cancer. James has been a part of Team CHUCKLE and the PMC since 2011 and began riding in memory of his brother-in-law's father, Mark Edmondson.

Additionally each has been affected through Team CHUCKLE as a teammate's sister sadly passed away at age 36 a few years after being diagnosed with an extremely rare form of cancer. Her life was extended because of treatment she received because of protocols that Dana-Farber had due entirely to research funded directly from the PMC. The team also has sponsored 3 pedal partners – pediatric patients at Dana-Farber – over the years. While two of them are doing great and in remission, the other, Tatyana, succumbed, due to complications from her many treatments and lung transplant, at age 16. Her loss affected everyone on the team greatly as she had always been an inspiration to anyone who met her.

In talking with people – friends and family – who are going through treatments, they have found out that some are being treated with drugs that are available only because of research funded directly from PMC donations, drugs that were not discovered until even last year. So they can see the impact of the money they are raising.

The 2019 Pan-Mass CHUCKLE is open to the public; tickets are $25 and may be bought in advance at <https://PanMassCHUCKLE.brownpapertickets.com>. In addition to a full comedy show featuring Boston comedians Matt Fanikos, Mike Whitman, and Dan Boulger and emceed by Randy Vera, there will also be plenty of auction and raffle items with offerings of dining options, game and show tickets, memorabilia, and more.

Kudos For Job Well Done

Every year the months of April and May seem to challenge those involved in the manicuring of Quincy's cemeteries in time for Memorial Day.

This year was no exception with rain dominating the sun. Raincoats were not enough to shelter cemetery workers as they mowed and weed whacked the grass in downpours day after day. The weather was picture perfect on Memorial Day as were the city's cemeteries. The background for the holiday's ceremony at Mount Wollaston Cemetery was proof of everyone's hard work.

Kudos to everyone and all departments involved in planning Memorial Day 2019.

Beechwood Knoll School's Share Your Career Week

Beechwood Knoll Elementary School's fourth graders recently participated in the fourth annual Share Your Career Week. Both parents and family members enthusiastically participated in the event.

Fourth grade teachers Laura Mulcahy, Greg Caswell and Lesley Coughlin hosted the event in their classrooms the week of May 20-May 24.

"It is so important to give the students the opportunity to explore different career choices while learning how education is connected to a successful future," Mulcahy said. "The response of our parents was overwhelming and the information and activities our parents presented both informed and engaged our students."

Students participated in many activities representing a broad range of careers.

Christopher Ramos spoke of the requirements to be a plumber, consisting of going to school twice a week for 4-5 hours a night for five years. Ramos said that going to a Vocational Tech school inspired him to pursue a career in plumbing.

He compared installing new plumbing to a math problem. "You need to figure out how 500 feet of piping is going to fit together and function properly."

He shared with the students that the best part of his job is he gets to fix someone's problem or at least make it smaller. Each day and every job is different and it is rewarding at the end of the day to see all your hard work completed in front of you. Ramos left the students with some advice to "Finish school. Look at it like a sport. Never stop working, always push yourself to advance. Push yourself to be better than the day before. If you're learning, you're progressing."

Matthew Colantonio (Lilah's dad), principal of O'Donnell Middle School in Stoughton shared with the students that even though there are stresses and challenges he loves to go to work every day.

Colantonio lead the group in an activity teaching them about school improvements and budgets. He spoke to the students about the transition that awaits them in middle school, going from having one homeroom teacher to seven different teachers. He also stressed the importance of taking responsibility for your success or lack of and how being responsible in elementary school will prepare them for middle school expectations.

Colantonio shared with the students that he "plays many roles in his school, ranging from principal, teacher, supervisor, project manager, but most importantly I am a teacher first. Principal actually means the principal teacher." He left the students with two simple but important keys to success, hard work and effort. "I've never met a student who has not met success after displaying hard work and effort."

Jack Mullen (John Mullen's father) from the Quincy Water Department conducted an experiment with the students testing chlorine levels in the water. Students were amazed at the many rolls Quincy Water Department takes on to provide their families with clean and safe water. David Cerone (Matthew Cerone's dad) a Quincy Housing Authority Mechanic for the past 24 years advised the students to "always try something different when you're younger." Vincent Tran (Annabelle Tran's brother) a financial advisor also told the students to "try a lot of different things, try as hard as you can, you'll find something along the way you really like."

Students who have a passion for creativity loved listening to husband and wife presenters Matt and Farrah Osborne who spoke of their graphic design business. Matt went to college for graphic design and design communications. He shared that the best part of his job is he gets to be creative every day and that passion to illustrate and design has led to work and design with companies such as Hasbro, Nike, Canada Goose, Marina Bay Luxury Designing and more.

Kellie Zuffante (Caroline's mom) a cardiac nurse at Beth Israel Hospital also presented letting students know that a career in nursing can take you anywhere, from hospitals, schools, nursing homes, even military bases. Zuffante shared that "it's nice to take care of people at different stages of their lives from the beginning of their life and towards the end of their lives." A challenging but important part of nursing is being each patient's advocate to receive the best care possible.

Quincy firefighters Michael Fitzpatrick and Bill Knox came into the classroom and spoke of the importance of home fire safety and spoke to the students about all the different fire gear and how it operates. Fitzpatrick performed a "mock rescue" for the students, teaching students to stay low and always call out for help if you see a firefighter. In addition to their classroom presentation the students were able to tour the firetruck and each student got a turn spraying the fire hose. A memory they surely will hold onto dearly.

The Beechwood Knoll staff and students could not thank our parents enough for their support allowing this program to happen each year.

"The Beechwood Knoll community continues to be a very special resource for our school and for that we are very thankful," Mulcahy, Caswell and Coughlin agree. Looking forward to the 5th Annual Event next year.

St. Yves School Fundraiser Great Success For Great Cause

By MARIE DENISE
FABIEN

The Annual Haitian Fundraiser was held on May 19 at the Knights of Columbus Hall in North Quincy. This year the fundraiser took place on the feast day of St. Yves, the patron Saint of Lawyers.

The fundraiser was a great success thanks to the generous citizens and businesses of Quincy, Dorchester, Milton and their children. They donated their funds, their assets, their time, as well as their children's talents. They came young and old, parents and children English, Mandarin, Cantonese, Vietnamese, Italian, Sweden, Spanish, Hindi, Parisian French and Haitian Creole speakers and more. They were from America, Asia, Europe, Africa and Haiti. They were all gathered for a common and great cause: to help rebuild St. Yves School and support the children of the school.

The Holy Spirit was surely present in the upper room, at the Knights of Columbus that evening. We thank Jesus, thank God for such a successful event and for all these generous Quincy and Dorchester givers.

The event began with a warm greeting from two lovely girls 1st and 3rd graders from Ghana attending QCA. The event coordinator and co-founder of St. Yves School Foundation, Mrs. Gail McDonald, gave an amazing welcome to all. She also introduced the School co-founder's daughter, Marie-Denise.

At 6:15 p.m. the Rev. Pastor Karen Palmatier of the Covenant Church blessed the food and of the attendees. Then Fr. Jason Macos of Saint Agatha Church in Milton, gave a second and powerful blessing to all. The attendees dined while listening to wonderful tunes by music coordinator, Dio and his mom. The guests delighted while eating tasty Italian-American dishes courtesy of Gennaro Eatery. The menu also included delicious Haitian barbecue chicken courtesy of Mrs. Tita Fabien's recipes, as well as red kidney rice and beans. There was a huge amount of chicken dishes offered thanks to the generosity.

The participants rejoiced while taking their chances on the numerous baskets and gift certificates. They also enjoyed the beautiful cake magnificently decorated by baker Andrew of Gennaro Eatery and chocolate chip cookies courtesy Dr. and Mrs. Bill.

The highlight of the evening was the performance by The Elite Dancers of Velocity Dance who gave a spectacular show of dance which kept all the attendees breathless. Velocity received a plaque sent directly from the management of St. Yves School. Our thanks to the parents the dancers as well as the owner of Velocity, Mr. Vince and Miss Erica who have been a great support in the rebuilding and St. Yves School Haiti.

At about 8 p.m. the very talented 7th grader Aaron Fernandez entertained the attendees while playing perfectly lovely tunes on the violin which amazed everyone.

Then it was time for the door prizes. Many lucky winners received an ice cream key for a daily ice cream at Wendy's Newport Avenue during the entire year. Then the lovely 7th grader Grace L'Or Jean beautifully sang with an angelic voice The Star Spangled Banner. She was accompanied by the superb violinist Mrs. Suzan Bill.

Mrs. Tita Fabien, the widow of the co-founder of St. Yves School, put all her energy to sing the national anthem of Haiti La Dessalinienne along with daughter Marie-Denise.

The lovely dancers of Stars dressed in red and black performed a beautiful waltz under the direction of Mrs. Leen. Thanks to their parents for bringing them.

By 8:30 p.m. everyone was expecting with excitement the drawing of the prizes. They included 60 beautiful baskets and gift certificates donated by business from all around Quincy. Mr. and Mrs. John and Lucy Fair, long-time supporters of St Yves School, were the lucky winners of the 50/50. Almost everyone was a winner that evening, and all had a smile on their face. They were amazed and happy about the increasing generosity of the people of Quincy. Thanks to all the participants. They are banking in heaven.

By 9:30 p.m., it was time to go home. The remaining attendees and their children along with the famous DJ Kelly still dancing the night. The evening for St. Yves ended in beauty with everyone leaving the KOC happy. It was a great success for St. Yves School Haiti.

This event was greatly successful thanks to the diligent ticket sellers who sold most of the tickets before the event. They include Cindy Mullen, Elsie Laguerre, Pastor Karen Palmatier, Father Finn, Steve Buckley North Quincy Community Center, Mrs. Montero, Fernanda Pimentel, Marie Griffin, Christine Leblanc, Marie O'Connor, June MacGonagle and Sons Dirmuth and Mr. and Mrs. Fernandez.

Our greatest thanks to the volunteers from Fontbonne Academy, North Quincy High School, Velocity mom and dads for bringing your children to dance for St. Yves School and thanks to Mrs. Angel Kyranis, Mrs. Urma and all.

The St. Yves School in Haiti was founded by Attorney Joseph Fabien, Marie-Denise's father who had a passion for education. The school collapsed during the terrible earthquake which killed 316,000 Haitians on Jan. 12, 2010. The janitors and his children perished at the school.

Today, the school is partly rebuilt. The school has increased from 60 to 300 students from K to 12 grade. Our hope is to continue with the rebuilding and to grow so that we can accommodate 500 students.

We do have 12 beautiful rooms. They are far from the dream school which we hope to complete. Thanks to all contributors especially to all the lawyers benefactors of St. Yves School Attorney Georges Burke, Attorney Dolbec, Attorney Gavigan, Attorney Collins, Quincy Sun Bob and to QATV. Thanks to mom Mrs. Tita Fabien who traveled especially with gifts of shells painted at the school.

Thanks to both 1st and 3rd graders who pass out the shells at the event.

Our thanks to Mr. Leen & Stars for the very beautiful pictures. Our thanks to Mrs. Gail McDonald and daughter Alicia who prepared the baskets and set the room with Mr. Kevin Wilbur. Thanks to Dio Covias and mom for handling the music and sound system. Thanks to Father Finn, Father Macos, Pastor Karen Palmatier, Dr. Bill and Mrs. Susan Bill, Mrs. Julie Berberan and daughter Jane who helped with raffles.

Thanks to our great supporters Mrs. Denise Reneghan, Mrs. Theresa Lisa Murphy, John grandson, Mr. Larry and Mrs. Leah Sheah, Gennaro Eatery, Velocity Dance Company, Star Dance Company; John, Frank Knights of Columbus, Walgreen Pharmacy, Balducci's, OB's, Donovan Brothers, Meineke Southern Artery, Fratelli's, The Chantey, Cathay Pacific, The 99 Restaurant, Roche Brothers, Big Y, Stop and Shop, YMCA, Domino's Pizza, Comeback Physical Therapy, Amy, Christine Leblanc, Cindy Mullen, Lisa Alexandro, Max O'Connell, Cindy Mullen, John Kelly, Mary O'Connor, Jill Reamar, June McGonagle, Marie Conron, Principal Prof. Jacques Robert Jean Louis, Mr. Watson, the school janitor, Joseph Jean Grace L'Or Jean.

Thanks to the anonymous benefactors who send us money. Thanks to all who have been helping us since the earthquake for nine years.

You are record breakers. You are history makers. You are in it for the long term. You are revolutionizing the way mission is done. By sharing your children talents and giving to an organization where the funds reach directly to the victims, without administrative costs, you are pioneering something new.

You are good Samaritans, you are banking in heaven.

This fundraiser is our most important one for the year. It enables us to pay the teachers for 70 children in first, second and third grade as well as adding to the school building.

You can still contribute to this great endeavor by sending donations to P.O. Box 60, Wollaston MA 02170. The Saint Yves School Foundation is a 501 C3 non-profit organization. All donations are tax deductible and can be made at Account# 1321934820.

All funds are transferred dollar for dollar to the school management led by the director, Prof. Jacques Robert Jean Louis. There is only a $15 fee paid to Western Union.

You can see the videos of the celebration on QATV, Channel 8 - watch for the show The Call. Please watch us on YouTube by typing The Call Global. With God's help and your help we are moving St. Yves School Haiti forward.

Thank you! May God bless you abundantly, 100 fold.

vation efforts at the Josiah Quincy House; $50,000 to preserve documents and artifacts aboard the USS Salem; $50,000 to the City Clerk's Office to continue the restoration and preservation of historic city documents; $40,000 to the Quincy Historical Commission to update the city's historical architectural survey; $30,000 to preserve and restore windows at the United First Parish Church; and $15,000 to preserve items maintained by the Quincy Yacht Club.

There are three recreation projects totaling $165,000.

Of that total, $130,000 will go towards the creation of an outdoor classroom at the Merrymount Elementary School, $25,000 will go to the Quincy Housing Authority to create passive recreation and a gazebo at Tobin Towers, and QHA will get $10,500 to create accessible passive recreation at Louis George Village and Sawyer Towers.

There are also three open space projects, with a total cost of $43,290.

They include $33,000 to the Friends of Butler's Pond for the next phase of restoration and preservation efforts at Butler's Pond, $5,290 for improvements and enhancement to the boxwood garden at the Dorothy Quincy Homestead, and $5,000 to the Squantum Seaside Gardeners to beautify the Squantum Causeway.

Councillor Noel DiBona, who serves on the Community Preservation Committee, said the committee worked hard to review each project before approving them.

"It's good to recognize them — their hard work. They're very knowledgeable. They know the city," DiBona said of the committee members. "These are great projects in the city. It's going to help us in each category."

Councillor Anne Mahoney said Kristen Powers, the city's community preservation director, should appear before the council during future appropriation requests to provide an overview of each project. The city's website, Mahoney added, should also provide more information on the Community Preservation Committee, including past projects that received funding.

"Because this is a paid position that's paid for by the taxpayers in the city of Quincy, I expect more of a presentation than just us moving the monies into that and having a full disclosure of those things," Mahoney said. "People have asked me...where does the Community Preservation Act money go to and how can I apply."

Quincy's voters adopted the state's Community Preservation Act by referendum in 2006. The CPA fund is financed through a one percent surcharge on property taxes. The first $100,000 in assessed value for each residential property is exempt from the surcharge, as are residential properties owned by some seniors and those who qualify for low-income housing. The state also matches a portion of CPA funds in each community that has adopted the act.

Councillors Propose Residential Tax Exemption

By SCOTT JACKSON

An ordinance now pending before the City Council would give Quincy residents who own and reside in their homes a break on property taxes.

Councillors Nina Liang and Brian Palmucci on Monday introduced legislation to accept the portion of state law authorizing the residential property tax exemption. The item was referred to the council's ordinance committee, which Liang chairs, and will be discussed in the fall.

If approved, the ordinance would grant those who own and occupy their homes in the city a property tax exemption of up to 35 percent. The council would determine the level of the exemption during its review of the proposal.

Liang said she would like to explore the possibility of establishing a residential tax exemption so homeowners can benefit from the development seen in Quincy in recent years.

"I'd like us to have an opportunity to explore what is already established here in Massachusetts, which is a residential property tax exemption for residents who own the properties they live in," she said.

"As our city continues to grow and develop, there are a number of benefits that are felt across the city, but I think more importantly we should make sure it benefits residents [or] at the very least not be a detriment."

Palmucci, who previously introduced a resolution backing a residential tax exemption, said the tax break would help keep the city affordable for current homeowners.

"Quincy folks need to benefit from the growth we're experiencing in our city. They deserve a benefit because they certainly deal with all the negative impacts from the growth - traffic and all the other quality of life issues that come from the exponential growth the city is experiencing," he said.

"This ordinance would give them a benefit - a significant tax break. This is about a quality of life improvement and making sure Quincy residents can afford to continue to reside in Quincy."

Council President Brad Croall said he looked forward to discussing the matter in the fall and noted his colleagues can reduce tax bills by cutting spending.

"We all have an opportunity, particularly during budget season, to pass savings on to the taxpayers and that is through cutting the budget," he said. "I look forward to a discussion in the fall."

Chris Walker, the chief of staff to Mayor Thomas Koch, declined to comment on the proposed tax exemption following Monday's meeting.

NQ Boys Volleyball Bows To Newton South In Tourney

By TOM JOYCE

The North Quincy High boys' volleyball team battled, but their season came to an end Monday.

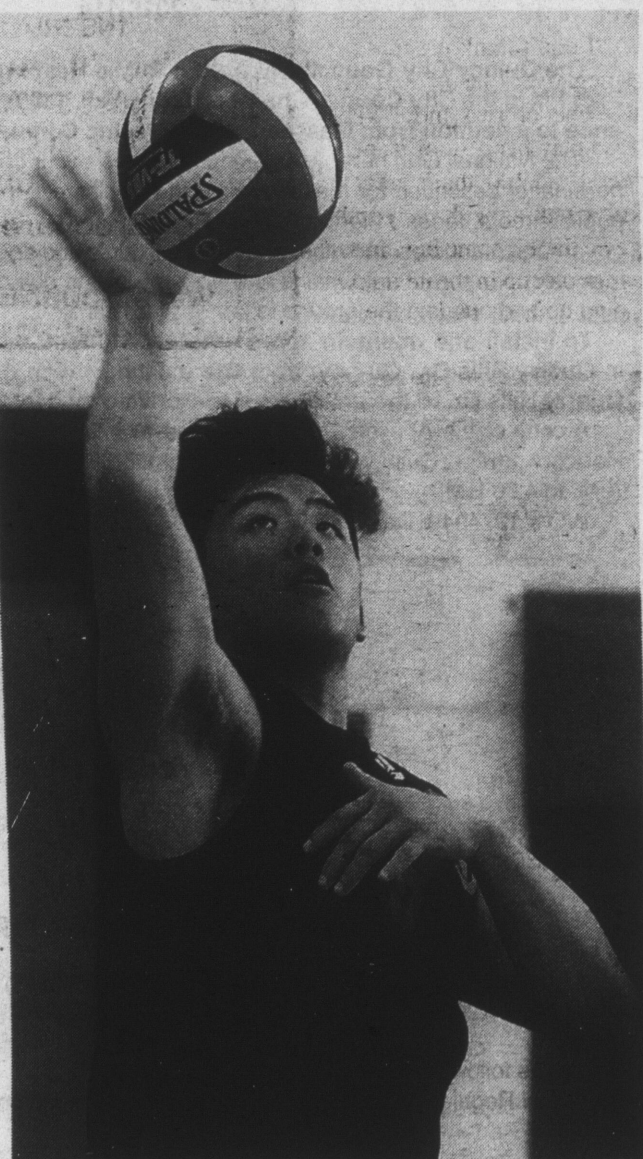

The No. 3 Red Raiders hosted No. 11 Newton South in the quarterfinal round of the MIAA Division 1 South playoffs. Both sides competed hard, but the Red Raiders fell 3-1 and ended their season. The team finished the year at 18-3.

"They were very tall and very big," Red Raiders head coach Jason Cai said of Newton South. "We knew that headed into this one. We had a gameplan and it worked, for the most part. They went on some really good service runs and we missed too many serves. We basically gave them a free game with our errors."

The Red Raiders started off the first set with an early stalemate against Newton South; the game was tied 8-8 after the first 16 points. From there, however, the Red Raiders pulled ahead thanks to a 5-2 run which put them up 13-10. They managed to capitalize on their opponent's early mistakes and went up 21-16 on a kill from Ilan Valencius (8 kills) late in the first set. The Red Raiders took the set 25-22.

The second set began under similar circumstances. After being tied 10-10 as the Red Raiders played strong defense, Newton South started pulling away; the road team went on a 9-4 run and forced the Red Raiders to call a timeout while trailing 19-14. They could not overcome the deficit and fell 25-17, tying the match at 1-1.

By the time the third set came around, the Red Raiders were competitive, but their serving struggles hurt their chances of pulling ahead. The set was tied at six, seven, eight, nine and 11 points and eventually at 23 apiece. The Red Raiders never trailed by more than three points in the set, but did not find themselves on any major scoring runs. While the defense played tough, they dropped the set 25-23.

The Red Raiders went down 16-8 midway through the fourth and final set, but did not quit. With Newton South up 24-17 and ready to score the game winning point, the Red Raiders went on a 6-0 run to come within a point Newton South with clutch hits from Tommy Nguyen (10 kills) and Valencius. However, Newton South got a kill and took the set 25-23.

"It was good," Cai said of his team's late run. "It was nice. It was a little hard to believe the way we were serving. I told them we were executing too late. We had about three chances to make a good service run, and we only took advantage of one of them. We had a good rotation. We were playing good defense, but the missed serves killed us."

Gary Liang led the team with 33 assists in the game

NORTH QUINCY SENIOR Ilan Valencius battles two Newton South defenders at the net during Monday's 3-1 loss in the Div. 1 South Sectional quarterfinals.

while defensively, Jeffrey Huang's 15 digs were a team-high. The two as well as Nguyen and Valencius, who hit well in the bout against Newton South, served as the team's four senior captains this season.

"Last year, we graduated five seniors and those juniors stepped up," Cai said. "I can honestly tell you before this season, I didn't think we'd have as good of a year as we did. Preseason, I thought we'd go 10-6. After the first match, I was predicting 50/50 we'd make it to the tournament."

"These kids surprised me," he added. "They worked hard and I'm proud of the way they played the entire season. They're fantastic players. They really stepped up. And there's a bunch of juniors this year, so somebody will step up. Somebody always does."

With nine juniors on the Red Raiders varsity roster this season and 11 players overall set to return, experience should be an asset for the team in 2020. Not to mention, some of those players now have experience playing in a tournament atmosphere.

"It's good for them to play in a high intensity match where everything is on the table," Cai said. "It always puts more pressure on you, which is why it's an advantage to play club: you're playing in those championship moments all of the time in every single tournament. For us, it's just one tournament. You don't always get that feeling and it's hard to replicate."

Cai, who owns North Quincy Auto Academy, also noted there is a chance he is not back with the team next season due to his busy work schedule.

Q-NQ Boys Lacrosse Ends Season On Positive Note

By TOM JOYCE

Even though the season did not go the way that they had hoped, the Quincy/North Quincy High boys' lacrosse co-op had reason to celebrate following their regular season finale.

Q-NQ played a hard fought match against Mashpee at home May 30 and ended the season with an 11-9 victory. Q-NQ finished the season at 2-16.

"It's just nice to end the season on a positive note," head coach Matt Gibbons said. "These guys worked hard all year. The wins and losses weren't what we were hoping for, but they worked hard and it's nice to be rewarded for it."

Trailing 8-7 headed into the fourth quarter, Q-NQ buried their shots and played tough defense to come back and win. Sophomore Kevin Feeney netted the game-tying goal less than a minute into the fourth to make it an 8-8 game.

Q-NQ took the lead with 3:24 remaining on a sidarm shot from senior captain Matt O'Brien while standing right in front of the net. Less than one minute later, junior Brendan Kilcommons dropped one in the back of Mashpee's net while being triple teamed. Feeney then added his fourth and final goal of the game with 1:56 remaining to put the team up 11-8. Mashpee would score one more time, but Q-NQ controlled the ball and prevented a late comeback from taking place.

In their final three games, Q-NQ played three competitive games. They fell 6-5 to Abington in overtime on May 21 and 15-10 to East Bridgewater on May 28; given that they lost 12-3 to East Bridgewater in their opener, the performance in the second contest exemplified the progress the team has made over the past two months.

"That's the best thing," Gibbons said. "We went down a ton to East Bridgewater and played our best second half of the year. I think most teams would've quit weeks ago, and these kids didn't. It says a lot about these kids and how hard they want to work."

Kilcommons played especially well in the final two games of the season, netting a combined ten goals between the two of them.

The win over Mashpee marked the final game high school game for the Q-NQ seniors. Key players in the class include captains Dan O'Leary and Matt O'Brien on the attack; Jake Zisk, a two year starter on defense; defensemen Mark McKenna and midfielder Paul Clancy, both of whom were first year players; and defenseman Robert Cabral.

The team will also return its share of young talent. Two of the team's four captains this year were juniors: midfielders Brendan Bailey and Matt McGourty. In addition to them two as well as Feeney and Kilcommons, the team's starting goalkeeper, Riley O'Connell, was a freshman this season.

"It's huge," Gibbons said. "For us, having those guys who were captains as juniors will carry over for us. The big thing for us is we need to pick up our sticks over the next eight months, not in March. We need to get into more of a rhythm. They'll need to get these kids together and going in August, September, November."

Gibbons hopes to build up the Q-NQ lacrosse program, much like he did with the North Quincy High boys' hockey team. The Red Raiders went 16-6 this past winter and Gibbons earned the MIAA's Boys' Hockey Coach of the Year Award. The year before the playoff trip, the boys' hockey team won just three games, so Gibbons has dealt with a rebuild before.

"It's not an overnight thing obviously," he said. "The biggest thing is getting these guys to commit. That'll make it easier. Hockey is a little different because they've been playing their whole lives. They're committed to it. Their parents are committed to it. They're committed to it financially. And with lacrosse, you go through the list and we had four first-year seniors playing. That's great and we'll take it, but we want to get guys committed early. Once we can get to that stage, we should be good. The majority of our guys need to be lacrosse guys and that's what we're working towards."

Gibbons noted the emergence of the Boston Cannons in Quincy could bolster the city's lacrosse program in the long term as it will provide increased exposure to the sport for children.

"It's pretty cool what's happening," he said. "We'll reap the benefits more next year since they've been working on the field this spring. Hopefully, it gives us the shot in the arm we need and the commitment will come."

"I don't think it could be a negative," he added. "If it's one or two more kids who play because of it, perfect. If it's 100, that's great. I know talking with the youth guys, there's some big classes coming up in the next few years. I think that's gonna be the biggest thing for us, and maybe some younger kids will see the Cannons play and decide they want to play lacrosse."

Emily Bryson Wins Fourth National Track & Field Crown

Brandeis University senior Emily Bryson of Quincy capped her illustrious career in style May 25, winning her third national title of the year and the fourth of her career in the 1,500-meter run at the NCAA Division III Outdoor Track and Field Championships at the SPIRE Institute in Geneva, Ohio.

Bryson, a 2015 graduate of North Quincy High School, stayed within the pack for the first three-quarters of the race, with no runner able to open up a large lead. As has been her style for the past two years, Bryson put on a finishing kick, running the final 200 meters in 1:04.21, the fastest final lap of the race by two-and-a-half seconds.

Bryson's final time was 4:28.44, as she pulled away from Bates College senior Ayden Eickhoff to win by 2.29 seconds. Bryson finished her season undefeated against Division III runners in the 1,500 meters to claim her first NCAA title outdoors after winning three times at the indoor championships.

With the crown, Bryson ties Victoria Petrillo '99 for the second-most national tities in Brandeis history. This was also Bryson's ninth All-America honor, but first outdoors. She is tied for fourth in career All-America honors with nine, but has done so more events than any other Judge, earning four cross country honors, two in the distance medley relay, and one each in the indoor 3,000-meters, indoor mile, and now the outdoor 1,500-meters.

Later in the day, senior Doyin Ogundiran (Dix Hills, N.Y./Half Hollow Hills East) earned her first individual All-American honor by placing sixth overall in the 800-meter run. The 13 points earned by Bryson and Ogundiran put Brandeis in a tie for 18th place in the final team standings, fourth among UAA schools (Washington U, 2nd; Emory, 7th; Chicago, 8th) and third among New England institutions (Williams, 10th; Bridgewater State T14th).

This is the first time the Brandeis women have scored at the NCAA Outdoor Championships since 2011 and the first time since 2003 that multiple Judges have scored at the meet.

BOSTON CANNONS opened their season with a big bang Saturday as the major league lacrosse team edged the New York Lizards 13-12 before more than 5,000 fans at renovated Veterans' Memorial Stadium in Quincy. The Cannons invested more than $1.5 million in their new home stadium including a 40-foot by 40-foot video scoreboard, chairback seats, expanded concessions and updated locker rooms. Before the action, the Boston Cannons presented Gov. Charlie Baker and Mayor Thomas Koch with honorary game jerseys as they helped kick off the season opener. Cannons Win Home Opener At Veterans' Memorial Stadium

The Boston Cannons defeated the New York Lizards in the 2019 home opener at Veterans Memorial Stadium on Saturday. The game went down to the wire, but the Cannons held on to a 13-12 victory to earn their first season-opening win since 2015.

Mark Cockerton scored four goals in the first half alone, including Boston's first goal of the season with 9:35 remaining in the first quarter. Zed Williams (two) and Connor O'Hara scored the other goals for the Cannons in the first half.

Goaltender Nick Marrocco - who played his high school lacrosse at perennial powerhouse Duxbury High School before bringing his athletic skills to Georgetown - was tested early, making two separate point blank saves early in the first quarter. In the first half, he made 12 saves on 17 shots, but credited the defense for its solid coverage throughout the night.

"I think our defense played tremendous," Marrocco said, following his 18-save performance. "When we were six-on-six, I think we really shut them down. I think that shows a lot about our defense as a whole."

The Cannons carried a 7-5 lead into the third quarter, where the Lizards started to claw their way back into the game a bit, outscoring Boston 3-2 in the frame.

With a 9-8 lead at the beginning of the fourth, the Cannons scored four of the first five goals in the final period to take a 13-9 lead. Boston's 13th goal came from Zach Goodrich, who was suiting up in his first MLL game. Coach Sean Quirk said his goal came at a "big time" and credited Goodrich with a strong showing against some tough competition.

After Goodrich put the Cannons up 13-9 with 7:20 left, the Lizards went on a three-goal run to pull within one with 59 seconds remaining. On the ensuing faceoff, Noah Rak beat Kevin Reisman clean and nearly scored on a breakaway, but the Cannons scurried to get back in position to keep the ball out of the cage.

On the next play, the Cannons rushed the ball up field but turned it over near the midfield line. The Lizards ran the ball back into the Cannons' zone but fired it out of bounds to run out the clock. It was a nerve-racking final minute for the Cannons, but they hung on tight to pick up the victory.

The Cannons play in Dallas next Sunday at 4 p.m. ET.

The team returns home to Veterans' Memorial Stadium Saturday, June 22, at 5 p.m. to take on the New York Lizards.

Other home games are Saturday, June 29 vs. the Denver Outlaws; Saturday, July 20 vs. the Atlanta Blaze; Saturday, Aug. 10 vs. the Atlanta Blaze; Saturday, Aug. 24 vs. the Dallas Rattlers; Saturday, Sept. 7 vs. the Chesapeake Bayhawks; and Saturday, Sept. 21 vs. the Dallas Rattlers. City To Demolish Newport Ave. Buildings

By SCOTT JACKSON

The City Council on Monday approved a $200,000 appropriation to demolish three Newport Avenue buildings that were heavily damaged by a five-alarm fire in March.

Councillors approved Mayor Thomas Koch's request for the appropriation in a unanimous vote. The money will come from the city's state-certified free cash.

The March 12 conflagration started at 307 Newport Ave. and spread to the adjacent buildings on either side, 301 Newport Ave. and 317 Newport Ave., also known as the Odd Fellows Hall. The building at 307 Newport Ave. collapsed during the fire and what was left of the Odd Fellows Hall was demolished shortly thereafter, though the charred remains of the two structures are still on site.

Jay Duca, the city's inspection services director, said the $200,000 would allow the city to clean up those two properties and demolish the building at 301 Newport Ave. Duca said the owners of the three properties have not been responsive to his office's requests to take care of the matter on their own.

"I've been hoping against all hope that the owners would come forward and take care of this themselves. That hasn't happened and I don't want to end up going into the summer and into the fall, so that's why we are taking this step," Duca said.

The city, he said, would put the work out to bid and hire a contractor to clear the three parcels.

To recoup the $200,000, the city will put liens on each property. The liens would be paid back if the properties are sold in the future, Duca said.

Ward 3 Ian Cain said it is important the city gets reimbursed and called the fire-damaged properties a blight on the surrounding neighborhood.

"It's a blight. It's an eyesore," Cain said. "We're having the Wollaston T station open up within weeks. It would be great to see that cleared out, and hopefully move forward with some folks to come forward and take a look at that parcel for rehabilitation."

Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci asked Duca or other city officials to provide an overview of alternative ways the city can get reimbursed for the demolition work instead of waiting for the land to be sold. Palmucci asked for that information to be provided during the council's upcoming June 17 meeting or in the fall.

"I agree we need to do it. Someone could get hurt, it's an eyesore and it poses a risk," Palmucci said. "How do we get the money back? It can't just be we're going to put a lien and wait for them to sell, because that can be 30 years."

The property at 301 Newport Ave. is owned by M&W Properties LLC and was assessed at $753,000, according to the city assessors' online database. The property at 307 Newport Ave. is owned by Tan Fa Hai trustee and was assessed at $590,400. The Odd Fellows Hall is owned by Massachusetts Lodge number one and assessed at $497,600. All three buildings were constructed in 1990.

The Odd Fellows Hall and the building at 307 Newport Ave. had sat vacant since a three-alarm fire in November 2015.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Things that usually come easily and quickly for the Aries Lamb might need more of your time and attention during the next several days. Try to be patient as you work things out.
TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) A changing situation can create some complications. But if you apply that sensible Bovine mind to what seems to be a hopeless tangle of confusion, you'll soon sort things out.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Creating a new look for your surroundings is fun. Expect to hear mostly positive comments on your efforts, as well as some well-intended suggestions you might want to note.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Maybe you'd rather do anything else than what you're "stuck with" right now. But if you stop complaining, you might see how this could lead to something with real potential.
LEO (July 23 to August 22) Even a proud Leo ultimately recovers from hurt feelings. However, a damaged relationship might never heal unless you're willing to spend more time and effort trying to work things out.
VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) There are lots of changes on the horizon, so be prepared to make some adjustments in your usually fine-tuned life. One change might even impact a personal decision you've been putting off.
LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Being the dependable person you are could work in your favor for a project that requires both skill and accountability. But check this out carefully. There could be a hidden downside.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A temperamental outburst about a mis-handled project causes some fallout. Be sure to couple an apology with an explanation. A new opportunity beckons by week's end.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Changing horses midstream is usually unwise but sometimes necessary. Examine your options carefully before making a decision. A trusted colleague offers good advice.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) While much of your time is involved with business matters, fun-time opportunities open up by week's end. Enjoy yourself, but be careful that you don't overspend.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A "revelation" opens your eyes to what is really going on in the workplace. What you learn could make a difference in your career path. Continue to be alert for more news.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Not wanting to make waves might be the safest way to deal with a difficult situation. But no substantive changes can be made unless you share your assessments with others.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a way of talking to people that makes them want to listen. You could find a successful career in politics.

HOLLYWOOD

by Tony Rizzo

HOLLYWOOD -- The "Me Too" movement has finally caught up with Woody Allen. The first clue came when Woody started shopping his memoir around to publishers and found that no one would touch it. His latest film, "A Rainy Day in New York," starring Timothee Chalamet, Elle Fanning, Selena Gomez, Jude Law, Diego Luna and Liev Schreiber has been dropped by Amazon, which was to distribute it in the U.S. and internationally. Apparently, American theaters weren't keen to show a Woody Allen film. "A Rainy Day in New York" will now open Oct. 3 in Italy, hoping for great reviews in Europe to help convince greedy theater owners to change their minds. Allegedly, Greta Gerwig, Colin Firth, Ellen Page, Michael Caine and Timothee Chalamet are at the top of a list of actors who say they'll never work with Woody again. But Kevin Spacey is very available.

Olivia Colman, this year's best-actress Oscar winner (for "The Favourite"), and Anthony Hopkins, best-actor Oscar winner for "Silence of the Lambs," are shooting "The Father," in which Colman plays the daughter of Hopkins, who refuses any assistance from her despite the fact that he's slowly going mad. "Batwoman" will be coming to the CW with Ruby Rose in the title role as the first gay live-action superhero. Rose starred in "Resident Evil: The Final Chapter" (2016), "John Wick: Chapter 2" (2017) and "The Meg" (2018). In more CW news, Kennedy McMann of "Gone" (2017) is "Nancy Drew," with Scott Wolf as her father, and Lucy Hale is joining the new "Riverdale" spinoff series "Katy Keene."

Brad Pitt's latest, the sci-fi film "Ad Astra," with Ruth Negga, Jamie Kennedy, Donald Sutherland and Tommy Lee Jones, was due in theaters May 24, but was pulled by Disney after its 20th Century Fox buy-out. Now that Disney has devoured the movie world, it has become the most powerful film studio since the MGM Studios years! Disney has always had the family film market, but now that it's acquired The Marvel Universe (with the No. 1 box-office hit of all time, "Avengers: Endgame," which surpassed first "Titanic" and then "Avatar"), all the "Star Wars" films formerly owned by 20th Century Fox, and the "Avatar" franchise, they've got it all. Disney has set up a new release pattern for the "Avatar" films. "Avatar 2" was to have opened Dec. 18, 2020, but will now premiere Dec. 17, 2021, followed by "Avatar 3" (Dec. 22, 2023), "Avatar 4" (Dec. 19, 2025) and "Avatar 5" (Dec. 17, 2027). "Star Wars: The Rise of Skywalker" opens in December and will be followed by two more "Star Wars" films in December of 2024 and 2026. How nice of Disney give us all those dates to look forward to. We should all live so long ... LOL!

GO FIGURE!

by Linda Thistle

KOVELS Antiques & Collecting

By Terry and Kim Kovel

Globe Vase --- The ancient Greeks figured out that Earth was round in about 500 B.C. But the oldest surviving globe showing our planet was made in 1492 by Martin Behaim of Germany. The first globe to show America was made about 1507. Early globes were made of paper glued to a sphere. The paper was cut into "gores," the shapes needed to completely cover a sphere. Because the globe surface was curved, the map had a distorted picture of a flat Earth. Many globes have been made, and many are decorative as well as useful.

Dating most vintage globes is easy, because each time there is political upheaval and countries change boundaries, the maps and globes also must be changed. A Rago auction in New Jersey sold a 12-inch Longwy vase shaped and decorated like a globe. It was made by Maurice-Paul Chevallier (1892-1987), the director of the French company after 1930. The vase is named Atlas. The countries are not marked on the globe -- just the land masses and oceans -- so it will always be current. It sold for $4,063.

Q: My grandmother and grandfather got a Three Face cake stand as a wedding gift back in the late 1800s, and I have it now. My daughter doesn't seem to want it -- just my Lalique! I love the cake stand, but it's time to be getting rid of things. I want to sell it and wonder what it's worth.

A: Three Face is a pattern designed by John Ernest Miller for George Duncan & Sons of Pittsburgh in 1875. Some sources say Miller's wife was the model for the faces. The factory burned down in 1892, and the molds were destroyed. A new factory in Washington, Pennsylvania, opened in 1893. The company became Duncan & Miller Glass Co. in 1900, and became part of the United States Glass Co. in 1955. Duncan & Miller reproduced some Three Face pieces in the early 1920s and again in the early 1950s. Other companies also made reproductions. The value of a Three Face cake stand depends on which version it is. Many copies were made by the Metropolitan Museum of Art and are marked "MMA." The original piece fluoresces yellow-green under a black light. It sells for about $300-$400.

Strange BUT TRUE

* It was noted 20th-century American playwright Arthur Miller who made the following sage observation: "Maybe all one can do is hope to end up with the right regrets."

* When creating its cocoon, the silkworm spins a continuous thread more than a thousand yards long, or 12,000 times the length of its own body. To accomplish a comparable feat, a 6-foot-tall man would have to spin a thread that stretched unbroken for 15 miles.

* You may be surprised to learn that the onion is actually a lily, botanically speaking.

* In 2016, Michigan State University received a delivery of inedible mayonnaise -- the mayo had been frozen and thawed during transit, spoiling all 10,000 pounds of the condiment. Instead of just throwing it out, MSU decided to put the bad mayo to good use. The campus already had an anaerobic digester -- a device that decomposes organic waste and converts it to methane -- so they poured in all 500 2.5-gallon tubs.

* Guinness, that notoriously dark and bitter brew, contains fewer calories than skim milk or orange juice. Stout for breakfast, anyone?

* If someone were to ask you to name the sunniest spot on Earth, you might be tempted to answer "the Sahara Desert" or some other such exotic place. You would be wrong, though; that distinction belongs to a town right here in America. Out of the possible 4,456 daylight hours each year, the sun shines for an average of 4,050 in Yuma, Arizona. That means that there's cloud cover or rain for only about 10 percent of the time there.

Thought for the Day: "Whatever a man prays for, he prays for a miracle. Every prayer reduces itself to this: Great God, grant that twice two be not four." -- Ivan Turgenev

Now here's a tip!

by Jo Ann Derson

* "When you have a delicate lampshade, or one that has a textured fabric, it can be hard to get the dust off. One method that I've used is a lint roller. This works well for flat but textured, when a dusting rag would make it stick worse. If you have pleats, sometimes the best way is to remove it and take it outside, then use canned, compressed air to blow the dust off." -- Y.L. in Arizona

* To de-fat a broth, simply put it in the freezer. As the broth cools, the separated fat condenses at the top. You can peel it right off or scoop it away with a spoon.

* Coffee pot got a layer of grime? For a little extra scrub power, use a tablespoon of baking soda mixed with a few drops of dish soap. It's a minor abrasive, and it deodorizes, too. Rinse clean and repeat if necessary.

* "Here's a great summer activity: Save toilet paper rolls and paper towel cores, plus any small boxes. Add small hook and loop squares on the corners and sides. Then, kids can use them as free-form building blocks. It's fun to see what kinds of things they create. Save larger boxes to create a backyard castle using duct tape or packing tape to join boxes." -- V.E. in Pennsylvania

* "I dropped an earring down the disposal in the kitchen. It was hard to see and even harder to get at. I was at the point of despair. My lovely husband tied a string around a magnet and was able to pull it out." -- W.E. in South Carolina.

* Skinning chicken pieces is easier if you use a paper towel to grab onto the skin.

New Bronze Firefighters Memorial Installed At Mount Wollaston Cemetery

Original Concrete Statue Now Stands At Fire Headquarters

By TOM GORMAN

A new bronze Firefighters Memorial statue now overlooks the Sea Street side of Mount Wollaston Cemetery where 20 firefighters are buried and paying tribute to all of Quincy's firefighters while its original concrete brother sits at its new home in front of fire headquarters on Quincy Avenue.

As a group of firefighters looked on, a crew using a winch lowered the nearly six foot tall bronze statue into place on May 28 atop a podium made from Quincy granite inscribed, "Dedicated to the Firemen of Quincy." The podium had been vacant since September when the 90-year-old original was removed to be used as a cast for the new bronze statue.

"It's great, it's up, and it's ready to go," said Quincy Firefighters Local 792 President Tom Bowes.

The new memorial will be dedicated during this Sunday's 90th Firefighters Memorial ceremony at Mount Wollaston Cemetery at 9 a.m.

"Everything worked out great," said Bowes. "We got it up in time for Memorial Sunday."

The original statue was created in 1928. It features a firefighter wearing a 1920s style leather helmet, a coat and boots. The detail is striking - from the coat's buckles, belt, and rope ladder to the veins in his hands.

The 90 years of New England weather took its toll on the statue. Cracks, chips and blotches began to form as the concrete deteriorated. The firefighters union got behind a plan to create a new memorial.

"Last summer we decided to replace the old memorial and ended up using the old memorial as a cast because a lot of the old timers wanted to keep that figure," said Bowes.

The union contacted Skylight Studios of Woburn to create the new statue. Bowes said the company has created memorials for the State House and Boston Fire Department.

"They have a great reputation," he said.

Last September, the old statue was removed from its podium and taken to Skylight Studios where over the ensuing months, the new statue was created - a bronze replica of the original.

An effort was undertaken to raise the nearly $40,000 cost. A fund was set up at Quincy Credit Union and several fundraising events were held during the fall and winter.

Bowes expressed appreciation for the support of the community.

"The community was great," he said. "If it wasn't for the community, we wouldn't have gotten this done."

Bowes praised the work of Skylight Studios, noting the detail in the new statue.

"They did a great job," he said. "They were back and forth with us the whole way. They're a great company to deal with."

After the new statue was installed, the crew went to fire headquarters to place the original statue on a concrete pad next to the firefighters memorial. Bowes said the memorial, consisting of an inscribed brick walkway, bench, and flagpole, will be upgraded.

"We're going to build this up," said Bowes.

Should the city's proposal to build a new public safety building for the police and fire departments pass, the original memorial will accompany the firefighters in the move.

THE NEW BRONZE Quincy Firefighters Memorial at Mount Wollaston Cemetery. The cast for the new statue was taken from the original concrete memorial that stood for 90 years at the cemetery. It has been repaired and cleaned and now stands outside fire headquarters on Quincy Avenue. The bronze memorial will be dedicated at the 90th annual Quincy Firefighters' Memorial ceremony Sunday, June 9 at 9 a.m. at the cemetery.
